On Sunday our Seattle Seahawks will hopefully become the first team in over ten years to win back-to-back Super Bowl championships. Coach Carroll knows that championships aren't won by simply showing up on game day.

So, in honor of the Super Bowl let me draw some lines between football, CTE, and politics. Forgive me ahead of time if I take the analogy too far.

Let's set the stage:

This year in the legislature we are in the super bowl game of CTE's life to restore and maintain enhanced funding for all of our CTE programs. This is a game we cannot afford to lose.

The Team:

Everyone on the CTE team in Washington has been delivering huge victories for our students for years on a daily basis with little fanfare and recognition in years past. That has changed in recent years with the role and contribution of CTE for all students gaining in recognition and understanding by our legislators.

While we all play different positions on offense, defense, and special teams just like the Seahawks, we understand just like the Hawks that we have a greater cause than personal success and stats...it is about playing for each other and "having our teammates back." In CTE, while we all teach in different program areas, we also know that the strength and quality of our various programs is a part of the whole that creates the total success of CTE in our state.

The 12's:

Just like the Hawks who have the 12's and recognize the importance of having them "in the game" with them every week as seen at every home and away game, especially the number of 12's at the Super Bowl the last two years.

In CTE we have our 12's in the form of former students, parents, industry partners, and local community support. What we need is for all of our "CTE - 12's" to show up weekly and at our super bowl in the legislature this year!

Our theme - "I've got your back":

Every week the Seahawks have a theme and a focus for that week's game. Coach Carroll attributes this year's turn around after the start of the season to coming together as a team and playing for each other. Their rallying cry was "I've got your back" and I believe we need to do the same for CTE in order to win our super bowl - the return of enhanced funding for CTE!

So let's get each other's back, get in the advocacy game, and play for the success of our CTE programs that bring the thousands of student victories each day, each year!

So here is the Game Plan:

Huddle with your local team of CTE educators and create your advocacy playbook to contact all of the legislative members within your school district and home (if different). There is plenty of help on our website (see link below) to prepare and then execute your plan. Share the plan and playbook with your local CTE - 12's to contact their legislative members.

Use the web and social media to recruit new CTE - 12's! Here is a link to a change.org petition that was started by a local CTE General Advisory committee member to be used statewide. Share this with everyone in your digital network and ask them to sign and share with their networks. <http://tinyurl.com/m7s7xz4> While this includes support for SB 5082, which if we believe CTE is for all students starts to open the possibilities for age appropriate CTE activities at the elementary level.

The LOUDER we can be and the more often we can cheer for CTE the better the outcome, so just like football with a game each week we need to be contacting our legislative members weekly until they let you know they are in full support and will join in asking their leadership and budget writers to include the CTE Funding Enhancement in the final operating budget.

You need to know how powerful this type of contact is...when I stop by for an office visit and the legislative aide says that they have been hearing from their constituents back home it is music to my ears. It lets me know the 12's for CTE are out there! It is so powerful to have that connection to home when I walk into their offices to discuss CTE funding and the need to be in the budget.

So, please take the time to contact and share with your legislative members how important it is for them to understand and ask their budget writing leadership to include the CTE Funding proposal from OSPI.

(Please be sure to NOT use school district time or equipment to make those contacts to avoid PDC liability.)

Grading Teacher Preparation Programs: A Look at a Controversial New Proposal on Federal Evaluation of Teacher Prep (from Inside Higher Ed)

The Obama administration in November unveiled preliminary rules that would require states to develop rating systems for teacher preparation programs that take into account, among other things, the job placement rates of graduates as well as the academic performance of the students they teach. Programs that are rated poorly would eventually lose access to federal TEACH Grants, which the government awards to students who are training to be teachers and commit to working in high-need school districts after graduation. ## CTSO CIVIC ENGAGEMENT DAY

February is CTE month in our state, and we need your support! The Washington State Career and Technical Student Organizations (CTSOs), Washington Association for Career and Technical Education, and OSPi Career and Technical Education staff invite you to kick off CTE Month in Olympia at the 2nd Annual CTE Student Leadership Civic Engagement Day at the State Capital on February 4, 2015. This unique day of active engagement allows student leaders from across the state of Washington to learn about state government and showcase CTE programs while developing their leadership skills. This is a critical year for CTE funding in the legislature, and we need your help to educate those in charge about all of the positive things CTE does for our students. If you can collect stories from your CTSOs, attend Legislative Day, or find ways to get your colleagues and students to attend, that would be tremendously helpful. The day will begin with a briefing session in the State Reception Room of the Capitol Building featuring Superintendent of Public Instruction Randy Dorn, members of the State Legislature, and training for students. The training will focus on the legislative process, how to interact with members of the State Legislature, and issues critical to CTE. Throughout the day student displays on the 3rd and 4th floor mezzanines of the Capitol building will showcase CTE programs from around the state as well as the State CTSOs. Student participants are encouraged to schedule appointments and meet with their Senators and Representatives. Thank you for your help and support. See you in Olympia!
